[A long note in the Public Advertiser about the nature of Capitani's distresses—death of wife after an expensive illness, loss of considerable sums in trade, now in debtor's prison. The Public Advertiser this day published the following Sonnet V, seemingly a new sort of "puff" for Foote]:

To Mr F—

*While party rage, my F., distracts the state
And mutual lies contending parties raise,
As int'rest leads, or Pitt or Bute to praise,
Let vet'ran Tories with staunch Whigs debate.
With gen'rous Punch our spirits we'll dilate,
Laugh at those loud-tongued politicians' frays,
And to good Brookman's fame attune our lays,
Whose genial bowl all cares can dissipate.
Safely to Harrogate let Bute retire,
His gout at Hayes left Pitt in quiet nurse,
And Wilkes at either Secretary rail:
These party feuds unsocial rage inspire,
Destroy all mirth, and all good humour curse,
But shall not o'er our joyous souls prevail.*
